CHOPIN

This weekend Cleveland Polonia gathers to celebrate Fryderyk Chopin, the greatest composer of piano music the world has ever known. To use any words to describe this artist's music always pales in comparison with the aural experience of his music. To call it great would be insufficient. To refer to it as nationalistic would be an inaccuracy in his own opinion. What Chopin composed was a creation so universal and at the same time so personal that only his music can be allowed to speak for itself.

Born of a Polish mother and a French father, Chopin lived in a household which was quite simply the nurturing milk which, more than anything, contributed to the formation the composer's love of life. Influences of some of the world's greatest music (that of Johann Sebastian Bach) and the charged atmosphere of early nineteenth century Warsaw assisted in creating the stage onto which Chopin would thrust and organize his millions of notes only to create masterpiece after masterpiece which have spoken to and touched people of all cultures over the past two centuries. To Chopin, the music he created to be considered was classical, not to be blemished by any colorful name or hemmed in by any historian's boundaries. To Chopin, his music was pure and absolute in following with the ideals of his greatest predecessors.

In the pantheon of great Poles he stands aside Kopernik and John Paul the Great. In the fingers of pianists he commands reverence and restraint as no other. In humans he inspires emotions as he directs intellectual processes leading to a catharsis attainable only by the perfect union of beauty and truth. His life was but a brief star whose creations elevated hopes, sustained dreams and permitted a glimpse of the divine. His music gave hope to a nation divided and under occupation by Russians, Nazis and Communists and it crossed borders freely while Chopin's fellow countrymen could not. His music whispered and it cried, it shouted and it proclaimed, it sang and it danced, it lived and, to this day, it continues to breathe. The joie de vivre present in each note, even within those notes, chords and phrases intimating suffering and loss, elevated his work to the top of Parnassus, a glimpse of the eternal which only the greatest art can dare accomplish.

This weekend we hear his music by artists and by lovers of his music. This weekend we celebrate a fellow Pole and human being whose greatness seems beyond most mortal's capabilities. This weekend we celebrate life, his life, all life as we meet here at the Shrine Church of St. Stanislaus, yet another great Pole, then proceed to the Polish-American Cultural Center and then on to the Polish Cultural Garden to honor one of God's greatest creations, re-dedicate his monumental bust, hear a concert of his music by renowned pianist David Dubal and, throughout, become inebriated by the Apollonian musical nectar which flowed and forever will flow from the heart, mind and soul of Fryderyk Chopin.

MIRACLE IN CHILE

Like much of the rest of the world, I was mesmerized by the vision on the television screen late Tuesday night, as the first of 33 miners emerged from 70 days under a half mile of earth. Only a heart of stone would not have been moved by the sight of the little boy hugging his father after so many weeks of not knowing whether he'd ever see him again. Who would not rejoice at the playful exuberance of the next man to emerge? The human drama played out in so many ways afterward, each unique to the individual who was part of it.

It is a common and easy response to these amazing events to identify them as miracles. And so they are! But if we believe that something miraculous has indeed taken place, what exactly is the miracle? Sometimes I think we are too limited in what we classify as miracles. Sometimes we look only to unusual natural occurrences. If the sun were to hover close to the earth, or a rosary were to turn from wood to gold, that would be impressive. Extraordinary spiritual phenomena also call our attention. Bilocation, levitation, reading someone's heart — these things have happened with saints in the past, and perhaps they continue from time to time now as well.

But if we think that these kinds of unusual, paranormal things are the only things that count as miracles, then we will miss out on the many miracles God is bringing about in our midst. The more impressive miracles, in my opinion, are not those that defy the laws of nature. The biggest miracles are those that move and change the human heart, the times when the human spirit and the Holy Spirit are united in ways both humble and spectacular.

There's the bravery of the next man into the rescue tube — not another miner coming out, but a rescuer volunteering to go down into the cave that the others had begun to make into a temporary home. The whole world waited while the Chilean nation worked to bring people out of the ground — and this guy goes back in! Imagine the abiding sense of hope that the men below had to sustain throughout their ordeal. Not at all certain when they would come out, or how, or whether they would live long enough to make it, they all held on. All along, their spirit was joyful, playful, and intentional — not gloomy, despondent, and dark. Family members cooperated with psychologists and doctors to make sure that the men below would be in the best possible condition, physically, mentally, and spiritually. Engineers worked together to cover every possible contingency, and they did not rush into any step that might compromise their work. The productive and wealthy mine will be closed forever, in honor of the human drama played out there.

All this attention around the world for the safety and well-being of 33 men. What a global sense of solidarity focused on human dignity. What a massive dedication of resources — financial, physical, human — for a handful of poor men in a faraway foreign place. We have seen what human beings are capable of, if there is commitment, vision, and hope. If only this same miracle could be extended to poor and endangered people in other places — those in far-flung corners of remote deserts, and those right around our own corners. That would be a miracle indeed!

Ojcie nasz...

Dwa tygodnie temu przeczytałem historię z życia Franciszka Kucharczaka, którą on - zaproszony przez księdza proboszcza - podzielił się z młodzieżą z tamtejszej parafii. To wydarzenie opowiedziane przez redaktora „Gościa Niedzielnego” jest świetnym komentarzem do Ewangelii. Ponieważ jednak nie zdążyłem podzielić się tym opowiadaniem w czasie Mszy św. czynię to teraz, za pośrednictwem biuletynu.

Kiedyś, na prośbę jednego z przyjaciół księży, spotkałem się z młodzieżą jego parafii. Opowiedziałem im wtedy zdarzenie ze swojej młodości. To było jeszcze „w stanie powojennym”, gdy zawartość sklepów ograniczała się do pustych półek i naburmuszonych ekspedientek. Mama posłała mnie wtedy po chleb do sklepu piekarniczego. Gdy wszedłem, zobaczyłem kolejkę – w języku zomowców – „na dwa magazynki”. Czyli dużo. A chleba było mniej niż ludzi. No to myślę – co tu będę stał. I już chciałem wyjść, gdy tknęła mnie myśl, że przecież codziennie mówię „chleba naszego powszedniego daj nam dzisiaj”. Uderzyło mnie to „dzisiaj”. I że chodzi o ten konkretny, „powszedni” chleb, a nie o jakąś piękną metaforę chleba. Nabrałem głębokiego przekonania, nieomal pewności, że dla mnie chleb będzie. Więc stoję w tym sklepie. Ludzi ubywa, chleba jeszcze bardziej. W pewnym momencie stało się to, co się stać musiało.

– „Nie ma już chleba” – mówi ekspedientka. Ludzie w tłu zwrot i wychodzą. A ja, choć byłem wtedy bardzo nieśmiały, stoję jak kolek w tym sklepie. Mało tego, podchodzę do lady. Gdy oparłem się o jej krawędź, zobaczyłem na dolnej półce dorodny chleb.

– „Ten chleb to pewnie przez kogoś zamówiony?” – zapytałem z bijącym sercem.

– „Nie, może pan wziąć” – powiedziała ekspedientka. – „Był pęknięty, to odłożyłam” – wyjaśniła. Jakimi drogami szły myśli tej kobiety? Przecież każdy z klientów wziąłby ten chleb.

Ja tam zresztą żadnego pęknięcia nie widziałem, smakował wyjątkowo dobrze. Pytanie, czemu tamci ludzie nie wyszli, jak ja, z chlebem? Przecież też pewnie w większości odmawiali „Ojcie nasz”. Myślę jednak, że im do głowy nie przyszło wziąć Jezusa za słowo. Nie pomyśleli, jak dalece prawdą jest wezwanie: „szukajcie najpierw Królestwa Bożego, a wszystko inne będzie wam dodane”.

Słów tych słuchał także tamtejszy proboszcz. I choć nie było one skierowane bezpośrednio do niego, to jednak on przyjął ich przesłanie. Akurat w tym czasie remontował dach na kościele. Bardzo się tym martwił, czy potrafi ludzi do tego zachęcić. A oto teraz nabrał otuchy i powiedział do p. Kucharczaka: „Wiesz, tak sobie pomyślałem, że może i w sprawie tego dachu to się Bóg zatroszczy”. I Pan Bóg się zatroszczył.

Jakiś czas później ten ksiądz zadzwonił potem do niego ucieszony: „Robota poszła błyskawicznie. To były jedyne dni, gdy nie padało. A potem zaraz zaczęło padać”.

Modląc się, wierzymy w wysłuchanie modlitwy, czyli ufajmy Panu Bogu. Panie, przymnóż nam wiary, która jest ufnością.

Parish Ministry Fair Preparation

... The Ministry Fair is November 13-14 after all Masses in the social center. Please pray for its success, plan to attend, and consider the following:

- We are all stewards, caretakers of the many gifts God has bestowed upon us.
- Our challenge is to make good use of those gifts.
- Stewardship involves a change of heart, embodied not just in a single action, nor even a series of actions, but in one's entire life.

See you at the Fair!

TREASURES OF HEAVEN: SAINTS, RELICS AND DEVOTION IN MEDIEVAL EUROPE

OCTOBER 17, 2010—January 17, 2011

The Cleveland Museum of Art will be presenting a new exhibition, 'Treasures of Heaven,' offering visitors a glimpse of the Middle Ages, a time when art mediated between heaven and earth and wondrous objects filled churches and monastic treasuries. The exhibition explores how medieval artists expressed the sacred power of the fragmented remains and considers the role that relics played in the development of the visual arts. It will provide audiences with an unparalleled opportunity to see nearly 100 extraordinary works of late antique, Byzantine, and Western medieval art, including precious metalwork objects, paintings, sculptures and illuminated manuscripts, drawn from public and private collections as well as church treasuries across the United States and Europe, several of which have never been seen outside their home countries.

Parishioners of our very own Shrine Church might find this of interest inasmuch as we ourselves possess relics of numerous saints as well as that of the Cross and a mitre of Venerable John Paul the Great. For more information, call the museum at 216-421-7340.

"Up on the Fourth Floor" The eighth grade girls were treated to an ancient trade this week on the newly renovated fourth floor of the school. In conjunction with the novel Gathering Blue, Mrs. Martin brought in her spinning wheel and some fiber samples and taught a class on the history of spinning and its role in family ancestry. After a demonstration on the spinning wheel by our very own principal, the girls were given a chance to work the treadles while Mrs. Martin drafted the fibers. The girls were also shown finished products made from Mrs. Martin's homespun yarn that were woven on the family loom.

INFANTS / TODDLERS OF SLAVIC VILLAGE

"It is in giving that we receive..." Just two jars of baby food, a box of cereal, a can of spaghetti can stop the crying of a hungry child. We're not asking you to do it alone! Fr. Mike didn't ask just one of us to purchase a new freezer—he asked if we could ALL work together and chip in at least a dollar....and it worked! Now, asking you to contribute a jar or more of baby food will continue to show our concern for others, the hungry children of our neighborhood! Together we can do it!

Your donation will give you a chance to win a Hot Air Popcorn machine in addition to a variety of popcorns, salts and fun popcorn bowls. The drawing will be on Halloween, October 31st. Please donate and help us fill the baskets like never before.

AN INVITATION... Parish Pastoral Council will be holding its second annual Welcoming Social for new parishioners on Saturday, October 30. If you registered with the parish during the past year, you should have recently received an invitation to the social. If we somehow missed you, or if you are simply considering joining the parish, we cordially invite you and your family to attend. The evening will begin with the 5:00 PM Mass, after which Fr. Michael will lead a church tour. We'll conclude with a pot-luck dinner and fellowship in the Social Center (bring a side dish or dessert to share). Please RSVP by calling Susan Halamek at (216) 573-1243 before October 26 with the number of people who will be attending. We look forward to seeing you there!

300! When our school enrollment reached this dream goal, the teachers wrote short responses to: Why I am glad to be part of the Saint Stanislaus Community. Here is the response of Chelsey Sauders, Grade School teacher: "I am ecstatic to begin my teaching career at St. Stan's! The faculty and staff are helpful and professional and the students actually teach me something every single day. I know God called me here and I want to be my best everyday for HIM and my kids!"
