Catechism Crumbs

The title of this article actually is that of a book written by Albino Luciani, the Patriarch of Venice who was to become Pope John Paul I. Everyone over twenty five years of age will remember the astonishingly brief reign of the successor to Pope Paul VI back in 1978, thirty three days to be exact. We never really became acquainted with him other than his warmth which seemed attached to his trademark smile. I think he would prefer to be remembered for his accomplishments, his kindness, his charity – his service to all levels of society as Christ's vicar and the servant of His people.

His book, Catechism Crumbs, was probably his pride and joy, having gone through six editions in his lifetime. Catechism was serious business to this man as it should be to each Catholic who professes the faith. Sadly, this has not seemed to be the reality for many of us. Even priests and nuns and friars and liturgical directors and bishops are often at fault. At the liturgical workshop which we attended two weeks ago (the one about all those 'new' things to come) our own Bishop Pilla expressed his personal failure with regards to the catechizing which so poorly took place when the Mass 'changes' of the 60's were introduced. Proper catechesis could have reduced so much anger, confusion, even – hate.

What is 'catechesis?' Our current pontiff describes it thusly: Catechesis is first of all a way...it must render a vital encounter possible with the Person of Christ, through faith. Being Christian means saying "Yes" to Christ. This "Yes"... consists in abandoning oneself to the Words of God by resting on them. But even more it means trying to know better the profound sense of this Word.

It is an ongoing process of learning and discovery that can never end. One never 'graduates' from catechism class. If you choose to stop studying your faith, that faith will become compromised sooner than you can imagine. "Trying to know better the profound sense of the word" is no easy task, but it is vital.

Life is an awfully short journey. The time given to each of us can easily be squandered. If your faith was ever important to you, please nourish it. It will provide direction even through your darkest nights. You, alone, can save it from simply gathering dust.

“My brothers and sisters, your faith in our Lord Jesus Christ must not allow of favoritism. . . Did not God choose those who are poor in the eyes of the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom he promised to those who love him?” James 2:1, 5

One of the blessings I have received as a Franciscan friar is wearing my habit in various situations among different people.

It has served almost as a “passport” among people who are at odds with one another, and between the rich and the poor. I have worn the same habit in elegant homes and in hovels.

A couple weeks ago David Krakowski wrote in his article about Mother Teresa of Calcutta, soon to be beatified (in October, 2003) by Pope John Paul II, coinciding with the 25th anniversary of his pontificate. Mother Teresa has been and continues to be highly esteemed for her self-giving on behalf of the poorest of the poor. And so is her community. Across the world the Missionary Sisters of Charity dress alike in their adaptation of the Indian sari, and have been respected from the Lebanese civil war in Beirut to the slums of New York City. Mother Teresa was not a respecter of persons, reflecting the truth that God is not a respecter of persons. Whether among the wealthy or the destitute, Mother Teresa wore the same sari, attempting to impress no one and apparently impressing, to one degree or another, all. St. Francis of Assisi did likewise with lepers. And so have countless men and women in our Christian Tradition. Not out of defiance or rebellion, but out of love.

One can easily quote Jesus’ saying, The poor you will have with you always, but me you will not always have (Jn. 12:8), unfortunately, often out of context. It can be a shrug of the shoulders in order to dismiss the reality of the poor, or to blame the poor for their own poverty! I personally think that one reason we may feel uncomfortable among the poor is because they remind us, unconsciously, of death. Poverty reminds us of our mortality. The irony is that we all die; and we all die the same way: the heart stops beating and the brain ceases to function.

It seems to me that when we face the reality of our own death we can accept the truth of our own human weakness, and then we can accept our commonality as human beings. As members of the new creation, baptized into Christ, there is no difference between rich and poor for us, for all are one in Christ Jesus (cf. Gal. 3:27-29). This is what James is telling us. We need not fear the poor, whomever we consider the poor to be. Sanity is seeing the poor person, not idealistically or romantically, but very much like St. Francis of Assisi or Mother Teresa of Calcutta, as very real persons who are created in the image and likeness of God, for whom Jesus died on the cross—brothers and sisters to me!

Pope John Paul II has used the word solidarity frequently throughout his pontificate. The Letter of James calls us to solidarity with the poor. Not pity, not condescension, not patronizing — solidarity. St. Paul affirms this when he says, Make real friends with the poor (Rom. 12:16). This is not about assuaging our guilt — this is about a change of heart and mind toward other human beings. This is about meeting Jesus Christ in the “distressing disguise of the poor”; it is also about encountering myself in the mirror of whomever I consider to be poor.

Lord Jesus, open my eyes to the truth of your Word so that I may always recognize your voice and your face in my life and never miss an opportunity to accept you and welcome you into my life, no matter how you appear to me. Amen.

Peace, Fr. Joachim Studwell, OFM

RÓWNI WOBEC BOGA

Niech wiara wasza w Pana naszego Jezusa Chrystusa uwielbionego nie ma względu na osoby. Krótko, ale jak treściwie pisze w swoim liście św. Jakub Apostoł. Osobiście bardzo lubię nauczanie tego apostoła, gdyż nie ma w nim wielkich słów, zaś treść jest bardzo praktyczna i zrozumiała dla każdego.

Jak postrzega człowiek drugiego człowieka? Każdy to widzi i wiele przykładów przywołać może z własnego doświadczenia.

A jak na człowieka patrzy Bóg? Zawsze tak samo: On sam przychodzi, aby was zbawić, mówi prorok Izajasz. A efekty? Wtedy przejrzą oczy niewidomych i uszy głuchych się otworzą, a język niemych wesolo krzyknie - kontynuuje Izajasz. Dla Boga bowiem wszyscy są jednakowymi, Jego umiłowanymi dziećmi. Wartość człowieka wynika z wielkości Bożego daru, a nie ze sprawności ciała, stopnia urodzenia czy pozycji społecznej. Gdy rozważamy dzisiejsze Słowo Boże, nasuwa się wręcz przeciwny wniosek, iż tych “wywyższonych” w życiu ziemskim wyprzedzają w drodze do Boga chorzy, upośledzeni, ubodzy! Wielkością człowieka jest dobro, a nie jego fizyczna przydatność. Jeszcze raz apostoł Jakub: Czy Bóg nie wybrał ubogich tego świata na dziedziców królestwa przyobiecane go tym, którzy Go miłują. A to znaczy, że od tytułów, majątku czy pozycji społecznej ważniejsza jest miara miłości. W oczach Boga miara praktykowanej wiary i miłości jest jedyną miarą wielkości człowieka.

Jak to wygląda w praktyce? Pokazuje to sam Jezus w Ewangelii. On zatrzymuje się przy każdym człowieku. Dziś zatrzymał się przy głuchoniemym; On zatrzymywał się wśród biedaków i pogardzanych, dotykał trędowatych, miał słowo przebaczenia dla grzeszników, z szacunkiem rozmawiał z dziewczynami z ulicy.

Inne jest spojrzenie Boga na człowieka, niż ludzi na siebie. On dostrzega wszystkie tajniki ludzkiego ducha. A co najważniejsze, patrzy bez uprzedzeń. My, ludzie, często tego nie potrafimy. A jest to nam bardzo potrzebne; o ile lepszy, piękniejszy i bardziej przyjazny stałby się świat, gdybyśmy potrafili patrzeć na siebie bez uprzedzeń, tak jak patrzy na nas Bóg. Wielu tak by chciało, ale jak to uczynić?

Zawsze warto próbować; a oto kilka rad, które mogą być pomocne w tej kwestii. Najpierw, nie spieszyć się z wyrokiem o drugim człowieku, nie tylko nie zabierając głosu na jego temat, ale nawet nie osądzając go przedwcześnie. Na poznanie człowieka potrzeba czasu; postarać się zrozumieć jego sytuację, pamiętając równocześnie o swoich wadach i słabościach. Warto pamiętać, iż osądzając bliźniego łatwo wydać wyrok na samego siebie. Bardzo istotną, aczkolwiek niezmiernie trudną sprawą jest wyzbycie się uprzedzeń i schematów: nie tytuły, pozycja społeczna, majątek, wykształcenie, wiek czy narodowość są miarą wielkości człowieka. Tę miarę stanowi jego szlachetność, dobroć, wierność oraz zdolność czynienia dobra bliźniemu.

Każdy myślący człowiek zdaje sobie sprawę, jak trudne bywa odrzucenie uprzedzeń. Ale prawda o człowieku jest tylko jedna: wobec Boga wszyscy jesteśmy równi, gdyż wszyscy jesteśmy dziećmi tego samego, kochającego nas Ojca.

Survey Results—3rd in a series

The Vibrant Parish Life Committee, along with the Parish Pastoral Council, has reviewed the results of the VPL Survey, which was completed by parishioners a few months ago.

In analyzing the survey results, the following list shows the aspects of our parish which show the largest “gap” between survey items that were listed as “important to me” by parishioners and “how well done.” However, it is important to note that the gap is so small statistically as to be almost insignificant. These are areas that might prove to be challenges for the parish:

Areas of a gap:

1. outreach to the poor
2. an understanding of major world religions
3. support for families who have experienced death
4. sensitivity to people with special needs (divorced, etc.)
5. new members of the parish are welcomed
6. promotion for respect for human life
7. parish leadership that listens to the concerns of the parishioners
8. outreach to non-practicing Catholics
9. programs that strengthen and foster family life
